

Privacy Policy

Effective as of November, 2024

Introduction

Mommy Map is an inventory of mommy, resale and thrift stores in the Vancouver City area. While we don't collect any personal information as such, we do process some information from you to provide the service, understand our business, and improve the service.

This policy applies to visitors and users (collectively, "Users") of the mobile app (together referred to as "Mommy Map").

Usage Information We Collect

Location and Map Usage Data. Mommy Map uses Mapbox maps to display stores on a map. Mapbox collects anonymized location and map usage information by default. In our app you can opt out by clicking the Mapbox logo and choosing 'Telemetry'. To learn more, see "Mapbox Telemetry". We don't collect precise device location data for any other purposes. On the application, we may get your approximate country and city location based on your Internet Protocol Address.

Usage Data. On the app we may collect information such as page views, visits, referring web pages, search queries done, and actions taken.

Device Data. We may also collect information about your device. Examples of such information include device model, operating system, app version, performance data, and crash and error logs which help us improve the user experience.

How We Use Your Information

To Fix Errors. To recognize any technical problems and fix them swiftly.

Transmission to Data Processors

We share personal information with our Data Processors in the following manner:

Mapbox. As discussed above, we use Mapbox as our map provider, and they use anonymized telemetry data to improve the maps. You can opt out of location telemetry reporting in the app by clicking the Mapbox logo and choosing 'Telemetry'.
